0.15 U value of LEKA solid conservatory roofing system is proving industry game changer

Leading trade fabricator Modplan launched the LEKA warm roofing system at this year's FIT Show and in the first month alone has already signed up six installing partners. Heidi Sachs, Modplan's Managing Director, said: "The LEKA roofing system really is a game changer and the impact it's going to have on the industry is reflected in the rapid rate of installer sign ups. The standout benefit is undoubtedly the U value of 0.15, but that's only the start."

Manufactured in a dedicated factory in Modplan's Newport headquarters, the LEKA warm roof is the only GRP-structured thermally layered roof on the market. The lack of any aluminium or wood components in the construction means no cold bridging and no condensation, a boon for any homeowner. It also means it is up to 40% lighter than alternative solid roofs which means it can be used in many more applications.

The impressive credentials of the LEKA warm roof are backed up with Modplan's trademark customer service. Installer partners are given full training, marketing support and sales software so they can become a LEKA Approved Installer and have everything they need to start making the most of what the roof has to offer. The product has already been approved by Network VEKA and has achieved jhai Building Control accreditation too.

Retro fitting conservatory roofs to improve thermal efficiency and give homeowners the year round room they want is a rapidly growing market. The LEKA warm roof offers something genuinely different so if you want to get ahead of your competitors, it will be a valuable addition to your portfolio. To enquire about becoming a LEKA Approved Installer, contact Modplan on 01495 246844.
